Gen Z & Millennials
who love quirky tech and humor

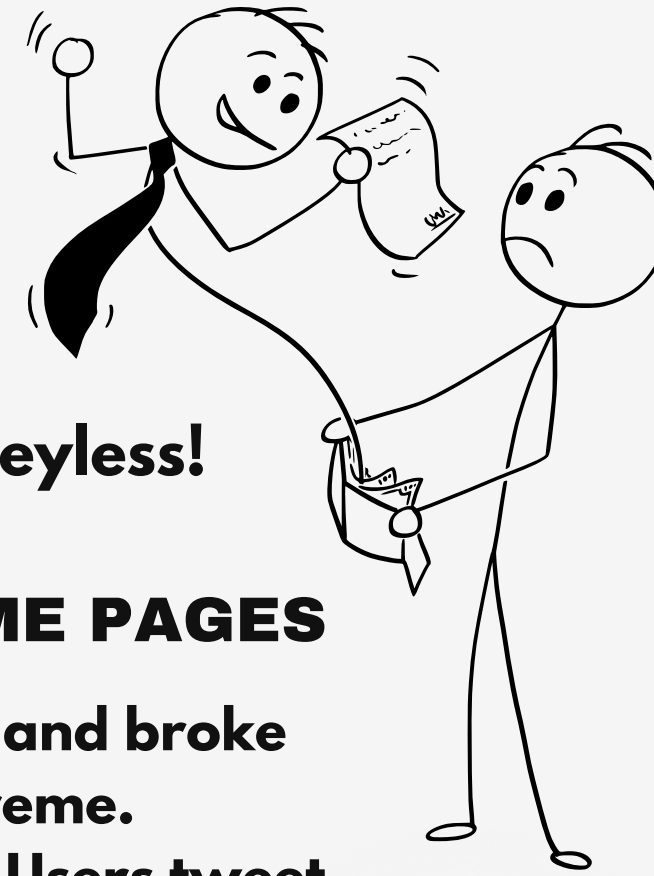

Budget-conscious dreamers

Welcome to #HeardMyCashCrier

This isn't marketing. It's a movement of the miserably moneyless!

INFLUENCER MARKETING

Who better to scream about being broke than influencers?

INSTAGRAM REELS

Because Gen Z lives
here and they laugh
here too.

TWITTER/X & MEME PAGES

Where chaos thrives, and broke jokes reign supreme.
CashCrierConfessions: Users tweet
their worst spending habits; brand replies with scream GIFs.

GUERRILLA MARKETING

imagine a park...
suddenly 10 wallets
start screaming.
Confusion. Laughter.
VIRAL.

YOUTUBE SHORTS

For people who want to see 15 seconds of financial failure with a punchline.

POV: YOU'RE IN ZARA

Me trying to pretend I'm not broke in public

DINNER DATE DISASTER

The CashCrier. When your finances are in emotional distress.

IN A WORLD WHERE CASH IS RARE... ONE WALLET DARES TO CARE.

It's a CASHCRIER

NOT EMPTY. JUST EXPRESSIVE

BECAUSE WHY NO?

Buying crystals to 'heal your financial anxiety'.

Retail therapy after thinking about your ex.

Spending on 'essential oils' that smell like regret.

Buying a third air fryer because it was on sale.

Subscribing to 7 streaming services and watching none.

Spending $300 to 'save money' during a sale.

Investing in crypto... because a guy on Reddit said so.

Buying gym clothes to 'manifest' fitness, but never going.

Execution Roadmap

Step 1

Prototype & Test: Build a working model (Proof of Concept → Engineering Testing → Final Design).

Step 2

Pilot Program: Give prototypes to 50–100 users for feedback (Does the scream work? Is it funny or annoying?).

Step 3

Start small: Validate demand via crowdfunding (Kickstarter/Indiegogo) to raise funds and build a fanbase.

Step 6

Expand product line: Add variations (e.g., different sounds, colors).

Go global: Launch in the U.S. first, then Europe/Asia if demand is strong.

Step 5

Humor & novelty: Show funny videos of people reacting to the scream.

Step 4

Direct-to-consumer (DTC) sales: Sell online via Shopify/Amazon after crowdfunding.

Lets users "mute the shame" during dates/job interviews (saving dignity)
I love this stupid thing, but let me turn it off at funerals." – Potential 5-star review
